ANTI-THEFT CONDUCTOR AND CABLE MARKING

Cable and conductor theft is clearly a growing problem, not only in South Africa but also in the rest of the world, with the impact of theft quoted in the billions of Rand annually in South Africa alone. There are several ways in which cable manufacturers are able to join the fight against cable theft, and one of the most important tools is the unique identification of the conductor and cable. This feature allows “serial codes” to be allocated to the cable, which are then associated with an identified owner such that ownership may be determined when criminal prosecution takes place. If the cable is stolen and pieces of the bare conductors are discovered, any one of the codes which may remain in the cable, or the conductor, could be used to identify the specific drum number and the customer to whom it was sold. Police, private companies or individuals may query any marking code with the manufacturer, who will identify the owner of the original drum of cable from which the specific mark originated. The markings must include the manufacturer’s logo; thus, it is easy to identify the company as the original manufacturer. Unique conductor marking must therefore represent a system by which ownership of a specific cable or conductor could be proven in a court of law and will assist with the prosecution of the suspected thief.

THE PHYSICAL MARKING SYSTEM

A sequentially marked polyester tape of typically 4 mm width must be inserted into the conductors (large conductor sizes) during the conductor stranding process prior to insulation of the conductors and into the cable during the subsequent manufacturing stages. The marking code, which consists of an alphanumeric code plus a barcode, is pre-marked at 100 mm intervals on the tape with the code changing sequentially with every mark. The principle of this marking system is that if the codes at each end of the conductor are known, then all the codes in between these two recorded codes are automatically known as well.

The conductor and cable end codes are identified and recorded against the drum batch number in our database at the final test phase of the manufacturing process. Once the cable is allocated to a customer, all the relevant codes which make up the sequence between the start and end codes on the drum are assigned to that specific customer.

SOL PLAATJE MUNICIPALITY

UNIQUE MARKING OF CABLES

The insulated cable cores must be laid up and the cable manufacturing process is followed in the standard way up to the lay-up or armouring phase where the sequentially marked tape is introduced. The cable manufacturing process must then be completed up to the final test stage at which point the codes are identified on the drummed product ends. In the case of ABC, the cable identification must be included in the neutral conductor.

UNIQUE MARKING OF CONDUCTORS

The uniquely marked tape must be introduced at the conductor stranding stage so that the tape typically follows the centre wire/s within the conductor construction. The tape must generally not be visible once the bare conductor has been manufactured so that there is no warning to a prospective thief of the fact that the cable is marked. Conductors must then follow the standard manufacturing processes up to drumming and final test where the end codes on each core are identified and recorded in the database, together with the cable marking codes.

DATABASE AND RECORDS

Electronic records must be kept of the unique start and end codes which are recorded against a drum (batch) number by the manufacturer where these records are retained
The end user and distributor may for his own records also record the cable and/or conductor end codes for internal record keeping, control, traceability and querying purposes.

SCOPE OF SUPPLY

The manufacturer must offer LV, MV (XLPE and PILE) and HV cables with Copper and Aluminium conductors, including LV ABC and rubber trailing cables with a unique conductor marking on conductor sizes of 50 mm^2 and larger constructions, which has a minimum of 18 wires. This cable range must carry the unique cable marking in addition to conductor marking.
Cable sizes smaller than 50 mm^2 with conductor constructions of 7 wires and solid conductors must be supplied only with unique cable marking and no unique conductor marking

STANDARDS

The cable manufacturer must make available its unique cable and conductor marking system generally in accordance with the SACIS 12 standard as compiled by the Association of Electrical Cable Manufacturers of South Africa (AECMSA). A SABS TC 66 (electric cables) technical workgroup was formed during 2015, with the result that the SANS 1741 standard was published as a general standard for unique cable and conductor marking.

CERTIFICATE OF INDEPENDENT BID DETERMINATION

1 This Municipal Bidding Document (MBD) must form part of all bids invited.

2 Section 4 (1) (b) (iii) of the Competition Act No. 89 of 1998, as amended, prohibits an agreement between, or concerted practice by, firms, or a decision by an association of firms, if it is between parties in a horizontal relationship and if it involves collusive bidding (or bid rigging). Collusive bidding is a pe se prohibition meaning that it cannot be justified under any grounds.

3 Treasury Regulation 16A9 prescribes that accounting officers and accounting authorities must take all reasonable steps to prevent abuse of the supply chain management system and authorizes accounting officers and accounting authorities to:

a. disregard the bid of any bidder if that bidder, or any of its directors have abused the institution's supply chain management system and or committed fraud or any other improper conduct in relation to such system.

b. cancel a contract awarded to a supplier of goods and services if the supplier committed any corrupt or fraudulent act during the bidding process or the execution of that contract.

4 This MBD serves as a certificate of declaration that would be used by institutions to ensure that, when bids are considered, reasonable steps are taken to prevent any form of bid-rigging.

5 In order to give effect to the above, the attached Certificate of Bid Determination (MBD 9) must be completed and submitted with the bid:

Includes price quotations, advertised competitive bids, limited bids and proposals.

Bid rigging (or collusive bidding) occurs when businesses, that would otherwise be expected to compete, secretly conspire to raise prices or lower the quality of goods and / or services for purchasers who wish to acquire goods and / or services through a bidding process. Bid rigging is, therefore, an agreement between competitors not to compete.
